Welcome!

As your lecturer for The Future of Organisations and Work module, I would like to welcome you to the module. The module is grounded in the discipline of Organisational Behaviour (OB) which is the study of how people think, feel, react, and behave in organisations. It includes studies that examine individuals, groups, and whole organisations. Organisational Behaviour (OB) addresses timeless issues related to how we live our lives at work and how our attitudes, feelings and motivations contribute to the performances of companies. Studying the management and nature of organisations is important because it allows us to understand and manage the relationship that exists amongst the different actors in an organisation. Organisational behaviour applies a scientific, evidence-based approach to management and interactions in organisations. This module is designed to address a broad range of issues that will ensure the successful management of organisations.

Studying The Future of Organisations and Work will provide you with an opportunity to reflect on what you have learned from other modules and from your study, work, and life experiences. To successfully complete this module, several learning activities (individual and group) must be completed prior to and during the block sessions. These are designed to be engaging and interesting and to facilitate a deeper understanding of the key concepts addressed in this module. I suggest that for the team activities, you may use online spaces for collaboration, such as google hangouts, Microsoft Teams, Zoom etc. Should you require clarification on any matter pertaining to the module, please do not hesitate to contact me.

This module will be delivered in a hybrid way, with both face-to-face and online classes.

Please read the complete guide carefully before coming to the first class. I invested many hours on making it both informative and clear and I expect every student to be well familiar with this document. Thanks!

Assistant Professor Mary Parkinson

PART 1: INTRODUCTION

This Study Guide is designed to provide you with details of the module The Future of Organisations and Work, the learning outcomes, delivery and assessment arrangements. The Study Guide consists of 6 parts.

In Part 1, background details on the subject area are provided, and the broad aims of the module are set out.

Part 2 consists of the module outline. In this part, the (a) module learning outcomes, (b) the themes and topics to be explored are explained along with the (c) learning supports to be used.

Part 3 gives details of the module delivery arrangements. It sets out the session arrangements and the expectations in relation to your prior preparation and student engagement.

Part 4 provides details of the assessment techniques used in this module, explaining the assessment components and their rationale.

In Part 5, the UCD grading policy is explained, and grade descriptors drawing on the university document are given for each assessment component.

In Part 6, concluding comments are presented.

Please always login using your UCD email address and your name. Your name should be visible to the lecturer and other students to facilitate collaboration.

Please join your online session no later than five minutes before the advised time of your session.

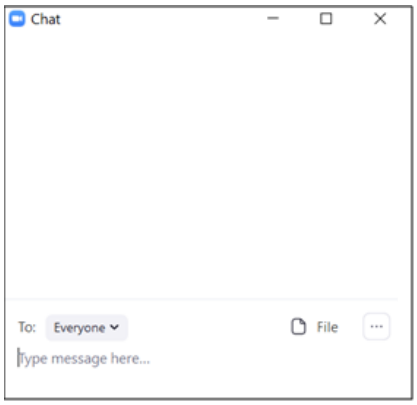

Engagement tools on Zoom

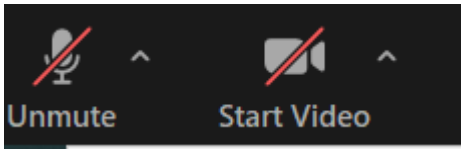

Throughout the online sessions for this module, you will be frequently asked to engage with both your lecturer, and with your fellow students.

The lecturer may send you into breakout groups and you discuss some class content in smaller groups before your findings are discussed with the whole class. You may use the "Share Screen" function (if enabled) to show some summary points of the breakout group discussions.

If you select "Chat", a chat window will open and you can communicate with the whole class or with your lecturer. If you would like to send a private message to your lecturer, please select your lecturer's name instead of everyone.

By clicking on "Reactions", another menu will open. This menu allows you to raise your hand if you have a question or would like to comment. If you see a hand icon in the left upper corner of your screen, your hand is currently raised. You can lower your hand by clicking on this icon a second time. The lecturer can also lower your hand.

When you join a Zoom session, you will be muted, and your camera is turned off. Please only unmute yourself if you would like to speak to avoid background noises. You can change your audio and video setting by clicking the small arrow beside the “Unmute” or “Start Video” icon.

Background Details

The Future of Organisations and Work module is about understanding the complexity of organisations, how they are managed and of our role within these entities. The module is grounded conceptually within the discipline of Organisational Behaviour. The study of organisational behaviour draws on the behavioural sciences such as psychology, social psychology, sociology, and anthropology. The module is structured around three levels: individuals, groups/teams, and organisational structures and their environments.

The core topics that you will study in this module include personality, attitude development, emotions, decision making, motivation, diversity, conflict management, negotiation, communication, leadership, power and politics in organisations, group and team structures and processes, organisational culture and change management. As managers and employees, we draw on our knowledge of these subjects to implement best working practices in all areas, thus ensuring that we attract and retain the most excellent workforce and maximise organisational efficiency and effectiveness. Organisational Behaviour is unique among several business studies areas in that it is not a specialised area of study; rather, in covering the principles of human behaviour at work, the module is of high importance to any professional, supervisor or manager.

Module Aims

The world of work and the nature of organisations have changed significantly over recent years. Rapid advances in technology, shifting global labor markets, evolving regulatory regimes, and the emerging gig economy are all having a profound impact on the future of work. These changes have lead to an increasing importance of understanding the evolving role of people in organizations.

This module introduces students to organizational behaivor and the management of people in organizations. Among the topics covered in the module include: workplace diversity, motivation at work, personality and values, groups and teams, leadership and organizational culture. The module provides for the blending of its theory and practice contents with the collective workplace experiences of the participants. To this end participants will be expected to contribute to critical reflection on their workplace experiences along with collaborative interpretation of such experiences in both classroom and study group settings.

PART 2: MODULE OUTLINE

Module Title: The Future of Organisations and Work

Module Code: BMGT2002S

No. of ECTS: 10

Learning Outcomes

On completion of this module, you should be able to:

1. Understand and be able to critically apply theories of how individuals behave in organizations- including how they are motivated, and their personality and values at work.
1. Understand and critically evaluate theories of group and team functioning, and apply to address challenges within groups and teams.
2. Understand the role of diversity in workplaces and critically apply their to the challenges and opportunities associated with evolving workplaces.
3. Understand and critically evaluate the roles of leadership and organizational culture in contemporary organizations, and effectively apply your knowledge.

Module Text:

Description (Book Title)	Author	ISBN	Edition	Year	Publisher

You will supplement the text with readings from current sources, as will be described later in this study guide.

Themes and Topics

Organisational behaviour is the systematic study of the impact that individuals, groups, and structures have on behaviour within organisations. The rationale for studying OB is to apply it with a view to improving organisational effectiveness and performance and organisation members' well-being while keeping in mind the interests of all stakeholders (e.g., customers, the general public). In the first online session I begin with an introduction to OB and the Future of Work.

Part 1: Introduction

1. What Is Organisational Behaviour and the Future of Work and Organisation.

Next, we consider the individual in the organisation and the topics we will cover are:

Part 2: The Individual Level

2. On Personality and understanding individual differences in work.

3. Job Attitudes and Emotions (including stress)

5. Motivation - From Concepts to Applications

Humans are social animals and much of the work we do organisations requires us to work as part of a group or team. Therefore, we will study how humans interact and work together, and how they make decisions. The topics we will cover are:

Part 3: Decision Making and Group Processes

4. Individual Decision Making

5. Foundations of Group Behaviour

6. Understanding Work Teams

7. Conflict and Negotiation

Next we have a special session on diversity in organizations:

Part 4: Diversity in Organizations

8. Understanding Diversity in Organizations.

Finally, we will consider the level of the organization. We will briefly discuss organisational structure as this defines the way that work is formally divided, grouped and coordinated. In this section, we will also consider how leadership shapes organizational outcomes and processes. Finally, we will briefly examine how cultures emerge in organisations and the impact they have on performance, and how change is managed in organisations.

Part 5: The Organisation System

9. Organisational Structure.

10. Leadership

11. Organisational Culture and Change

Class Dates & Times

Please ensure you know which Group of classes you need to attend.

Preparation in Advance of Sessions

In addition to beginning work on the continuous assessment reflection project, you are expected to do preliminary reading of the module topics in advance of meeting the course lecturer.

Student Engagement

During the sessions, students are expected to be able to discuss issues from the assigned chapters. Session participation is a vital element in the design of this module. Therefore, all students are expected to engage in class discussion and debate in order to facilitate the formation of their critical judgements. To support your learning, Power-Point slides will be available which may be modified during or following the sessions.

Office Hours

I will take short questions from students during breaks. I will stay and answer questions every day after class.

Recording Class Sessions

Students are asked to be aware that lecturers provide suitable class material to support student learning. I am aware that some students, on occasion, may like to record class sessions. Where this is the case, permission must be sought to record the session. This is to make not only the lecturer aware and ask their permission out of courtesy but to ensure classmates are also happy to be recorded. I am grateful for your full support in this regard.

PART 4: ASSESSMENT DETAILS

Assessment is undertaken to establish the extent of student learning on completing a module and according to Biggs and Tang[1] (2009) it is the senior element of teaching and learning. This module has TWO assessment components with specific weightings and marks awarded totalling 100. The purpose of each assessment is as follows:

- Assessment 1 - Continuous Assessment (Individual Written Report) (40% of the module grade) aims to provide you with an opportunity to research, reflect and write about a topic of interest that you choose from the issues covered by the TFOW text. It is also designed to allow you to practice and apply what you learned during the module in a field setting. The applied nature of the project will help you understand the practical relevance of your learning and to learn skills useful for management roles. This data collection-based project also provides you with an opportunity to work on your collaboration and communication skills, which will be valuable for you in any job.

- Assessment 2 – Examination. (60% of the module grade) The Examination is the formal examination which aims to get insights on your understanding of issues (theory and practice) addressed in the module.

Students are expected to complete all assignments ensuring that they are submitted by the specified date. All submissions must be typed, be well laid out, written in an academic style with appropriate headings (introduction, main part and concluding comments) and sections. Please ensure that all submissions are entirely your own work – for UCD's policy on plagiarism click on the link below (please see Appendix 2 for further information on Plagiarism and the policy on the Late Submission of Coursework):
http://libguides.ucd.ie/academicintegrity

The weighting assigned for each component is shown in Table 2a below. (I = Individual; T = Team)

Table 2a: Assessment Details

Assessment components	Weight	Individual / Team (I / T)
Assessment 1 - Continuous Assessment	40%	I
Assessment 2 - Examination	60%	I

[1] As the Overseas Programme modules are worth 10 ECTS they should be graded out of 200 marks.
[1] While the criteria detailed above refer to A – D grades (inclusive) only, please note that all bands*
*With regards to Continuous Assessments, students are asked to expect one final grade for this assessment component. All graded elements will be taken into consideration and calculated to create one final grade.

Module Assessment Components

In the following pages, further details of each assessment component are presented along with expectations in relation to prior preparation and completion.

(i) Assessment 1 - Continuous Assessment (40%) - Individual Written Report (2500 words +/- 10%).

Part 1 – Main Report (2000 words +/- 10%).

Your task is to interview two (2) Singaporean citizen employees working in Singapore, in the Food & Beverage industry. It is important that they have at least six (6) months of working experience. The aim of the interview is to gain an understanding of the challenges or issues they face working in Singapore in terms of Organisational Behaviour (any of the topics that were covered in the lectures). Subsequently, you need to provide recommendations to the challenges that were uncovered from the interviews. For each interview, you need to ask 5-7 questions and the transcript must be included in the Appendix of your report. The transcript is not part of the wordcount.

Your main report must include the following elements based on the wordcount:

1.0	Introduction of Organisational Behaviour.	50 words
2.0	Evaluation of any two (2) challenges uncovered from the 1st interview (include quotes organised by thematic headings).	400 words
3.0	Evaluation of any two (2) challenges uncovered from the 2nd interview. (include quotes organised by thematic headings).	400 words
4.0	Two (2) separate recommendations to address the two (2) challenges uncovered from the first interview.	550 words
5.0	Two (2) separate recommendations to address the two (2) challenges uncovered from the second interview.	550 words
6.0	Conclusion	50 words

Part 2 – Reflection of Learning (500 words +/- 10%).

You need to write an individual reflection on the TFOW module. The aim of writing the reflection is to highlight what you learnt, knowledge gained, your feelings, your difficulties faced in understanding the module/topics, your positive/negative experiences, etc. and how will you use concepts learnt as a personal development plan for future. You must write the reflection by using a reflective learning model.

Formatting:

- Assignments must be typed in Times New Roman or Arial (size 12) (Line spacing 1.5).
- Total 2,500 words +/- 10%. The assignment must in sequence, include a UCD Assessment Submission Form, Table of Contents, Introduction, Main body, Conclusion, Reference List, Reflection of Learning, Appendices and Academic Integrity Certificate.
- The UCD Assessment Submission Form, Table of Contents, Reference List and Appendices is not included in the word count.
- All cited material should be referenced in Harvard Referencing Style.
- Your student name and student number must be displayed on the front cover.
- You need to include 2 Appendices. Appendix 1 – verbatim transcript of your first interview. Appendix 2 – verbatim transcript of your second interview.
- Start your transcript with the following information of the interviewee as follows:
    - Full name.
    - Sex.
    - Approx. age.
    - Name of the company.
    - Job title.
    - Years of experience.
    - Contact information, either hp no. or email address.
- All submissions will be checked for plagiarism and the use of AI to compose the report. Evidence of plagiarism and the inappropriate use of AI will result in automatic failure in accordance to the University's policies.
- Submission must be either in MS Word format or pdf format via softcopy on UCD Brightspace. Any other format submitted will result in automatic failure.
- You need to record your interview in audio format, however the recording do not need to be submitted. You need to submit the recording only on request from the lecturer.

(ii) Assessment 2 – Examination (60%).

The examination will focus on module themes and the material covered in the text, cases, assigned readings, videos and class discussions. For this, students are expected to demonstrate their understanding of theory and practice addressed throughout the module. The examination question format will be designed to allow you to show your understanding of the topics discussed and also reveal your learning (new and prior). More specific guidelines regarding the examination paper format and questions will be provided during the final session.

The examination will cover all the material from the book, the readings, along with material covered in class. A recent past examination paper is included in Appendix 4 to this Study Guide; please be prepared for slightly different style of questions.

PART 5: GRADING

(1) Grading System

This section of the Study Guide provides students with details of the UCD grading system and also explains criterion referenced grading (UCD Policy). Under criterion referenced grading, students are graded on the quality of their work without reference to other students (norm referenced). For instance, the submission that meets the required guidelines in terms of writing style, analysis, description and / or summary will be awarded according to the standards set out. All students' work is graded to indicate the standard attained using the criterion referenced approach.

Table 3: UCD Grading System

Module Grades
Module Grade	Grade Point	Description
A+	4.2	Excellent
A	4.0
A-	3.8
B+	3.6	Very Good
B	3.4
B-	3.2
C+	3.0	Good
C	2.8
C-	2.6
D+	2.4	Acceptable
D	2.2
D-	2.0
FM+	0.0	Fail
FM	0.0
FM-	0.0
NM	0.0	No grade - work submitted did not merit a grade
ABS	0.0	No work was submitted by the student or the student was absent from the assessment

More specific grade descriptors are set out for your assessment components in the following pages. Section 2 below provides descriptors for the Continuous Assessment Reflection Assignment and the Examination – please read them prior to submitting your work.

TABLE 4: Grade Descriptors – Individual Assessment / Examination

Grade	Additional criteria more relevant to module levels 3 and 4 in the categories of analysis, synthesis and evaluation
A+	An exceptionally deep and systematic engagement with the assessment task, with consistently impressive demonstration of a comprehensive mastery of the subject matter and discerning judgement, reflecting • a deep and broad knowledge and highly-developed critical insight, as well as effective synthesis of extensive reading • a critical comprehensive and perceptive appreciation of the relevant literature or theoretical, technical or professional framework • an exceptional ability to organise, analyse and succinctly present arguments fluently and lucidly with a high level of critical analysis, supported by very convincingly deployed evidence, citation or quotation • a highly-developed capacity for original, creative and logical thinking
A	A deep and systematic engagement with the assessment task, with consistently impressive demonstration of a comprehensive mastery of the subject matter, reflecting • a deep and broad knowledge and critical insight as well as extensive reading • a critical and comprehensive appreciation of the relevant literature or theoretical, technical or professional framework • an exceptional ability to organise, analyse and present arguments fluently and lucidly with a high level of critical analysis, amply supported by evidence, citation or quotation; • a substantial capacity for original, creative and logical thinking
B	A substantial engagement with the assessment task, demonstrating • a thorough familiarity with the relevant literature or theoretical, technical or professional framework • well-developed capacity to analyse issues, organise material, present arguments clearly and cogently well supported by evidence, citation or quotation • some original insights and capacity for creative and logical thinking
C	An intellectually competent and factually sound answer with, marked by • evidence of a reasonable familiarity with the relevant literature or theoretical, technical or professional framework • good developed arguments, but more statements of ideas • arguments or statements adequately but not well supported by evidence, citation or quotation • some critical awareness and analytical qualities • some evidence of capacity for original and logical thinking

D	An acceptable level of intellectual engagement with the as task showing • some familiarity with the relevant literature or theoretical, technical or professional framework • mostly statements of ideas, with limited development of argument • limited use of evidence, citation or quotation • limited critical awareness displayed • limited evidence of capacity for original and logical thinking
D-	The minimum acceptable level of intellectual engagement the assessment task with • the minimum acceptable appreciation of the relevant literature or theoretical, technical or professional framework • ideas largely expressed as statements, with little or no developed or structured argument • minimum acceptable use of evidence, citation or quotation • little or no analysis or critical awareness displayed or is only partially successful • little or no demonstrated capacity for original and logical thinking
FM	An unacceptable level of intellectual engagement with the assessment task, with • no appreciation of the relevant literature or theoretical, technical or professional framework • no developed or structured argument • no use of evidence, citation or quotation • no analysis or critical awareness displayed or is only partially successful • no demonstrated capacity for original and logical thinking

Again, as said above, for each grade, instructors may give + or – also. Grades below D are not passing grades. Hopefully you will get grades that indicate you understand this important subject.

PART 6: CONCLUDING COMMENTS

This Study Guide is designed to assist and guide your learning for this module. It is important that you read it regularly and do so in conjunction with the core text. Should you need clarification on issues covered, please let me know during the seminar sessions.

I hope you enjoy this module. It covers many very interesting topics and in the past, students have said good things about the “TFOW” course. I wish you good luck with the rest of your study and for the future.

APPENDIX 1: GROUP WORK

BEST PRACTICE GUIDELINES FOR STUDENTS

1. Rationale for group work:

There are many reasons for using group work as part of a learning or assessment strategy – e.g. enhancing peer learning, creating a participative learning environment, encouraging debate and discussion, promoting social interaction, and developing students' teamwork skills (e.g. negotiation, delegation and leadership).

2. Group formation:

Groups may be allowed to self-form or they may be constituted through some form of random assignment. In the latter case, the assignment process may be structured to achieve some diversity within groups – for instance across areas such as ability, cultural background and gender – or on the basis of class attendance.

3. Managing the group:

a) The onus is on the group to ensure that individual members fully contribute to the completion of the assigned task.
b) Students must familiarise themselves with the College of Business teamwork model – https://qsblc.ucd.ie/videos/the-college-of-business-teamwork-model/
c) Effectively managing the group process and addressing challenges encountered throughout the process is part of developing collaborative skills.
d) Groups must agree basic ground rules around communication procedures, performance targets, arranging and organising meetings, maintaining records of group activity, progress reports, solving problems, finalising the project and signing off on the final product. The group should also, at an early stage in the process, discuss issues around equity and fairness.
e) Groups should draw up a team agreement and set milestones to use as moments for the group to review and identify emerging issues and assess progress.
f) Groups should assign roles to each member (such as leader, convener, facilitator, editor).
g) Groups should maintain minutes of meetings, work plans etc.
h) Individual members should maintain a journal of their own contribution.

4. Assessment of group work:

a) The assessment of group work may involve the assessment of the 'product' of group work (i.e. the content covered by the group work activity and assessed by the module coordinator) and/or the assessment of the group work 'process' (i.e. participation in the group and assessed by group members).
b) An individual assessment component (e.g. peer evaluation, individual reporting) may be included.
c) Where group work contributes to a module grade, members will be awarded a grade that accurately reflects their contribution to the completion of the task. To address the problem of 'free-riders' within a group, differential grading may be applied by the Module Coordinator.

5. Dealing with problems within groups:

a) Any student who is concerned about a member's contribution to the group's work must firstly communicate this to the group members. It can be helpful for the student to communicate this concern in writing to the rest of the group. The group must strive to resolve the problem within the group.
b) The removal of a group member's name from the cover page of a piece of coursework can only be done with the advance approval of the Module Coordinator.
c) If a group member believes that his/her concerns have not been satisfactorily addressed within the group, the matter should be brought to the attention of the Module Coordinator in a timely manner. The Module Coordinator may request that this concern be raised with him/her in writing.
d) Group problems cannot be solved retrospectively by the Module Coordinator.

APPENDIX 3 – TWO ADDITIONAL DOCUMENTS

You are advised to read the following important documents before you commence your studies on this module:

1. Guidelines for the Late Submission of Coursework

This document provides a detailed outline of the rules and regulations surrounding the presentation, submission and marking of assignments. The guidelines provided must be adhered at all times to avoid an unnecessary loss of marks. Further details on http://www.ucd.ie/governance/resources/policypage-latesubmissionofcoursework/

2. A Briefing Document for Students on Academic Integrity and Plagiarism.

The University understands plagiarism to be the inclusion of another person's writings or ideas or works, in any formally presented work (including essays, theses, examinations, projects, laboratory reports, oral, poster or slide presentations) which form part of the assessment requirements for a module or programme of study, without due acknowledgement either wholly or in part of the original source of the material through appropriate citation. Further details please go to

http://libguides.ucd.ie/academicintegrity

Plagiarism is a form of academic dishonesty. In any assignment, plagiarism means that you have presented information or ideas belonging to someone else falsely as being your own original thoughts on a subject.

All assessments/projects submitted must be the result of your own work.

The following statement must be included on the cover page of all assignments submitted:

I declare that all materials included in this essay/report/project/dissertation is the end result of my own work and that due acknowledgement have been given in the bibliography and references to ALL sources be they printed, electronic or personal.
